

Wildland Fire Investigation Cause and Origin Determination

FFA Training in collaboration with Incendium Fire Investigation will be presenting this unique opportunity for land-use managers, incident managers and policy makers.

This course provides one with the skills to accurately determine the cause of the wildfire by identifying the point of origin of a wildland fire, protecting potentially valuable evidence, as well as documenting and collecting evidence. This course was developed to train investigators in securing best evidence to be used for legal proceedings, to serve as the basis for administrative decisions and for policy development.
